Parking is very limited at the Milagra Ridge gate. For this reason, special arrangements have been made to let volunteers park their cars inside the gate on the preserve. A ranger or volunteer will be at the gate to let you through the gate. If you arrive on time, you will be able to drive into the preserve and park along a paved road that traverses Milagra Ridge, not far from where you will be working.

Note: If you are late, find the nearest parking place in the vicinity. Walk back to the Milagra Ridge gate and along the paved road past the gate. This road will lead you out onto Milagra Ridge. Look carefully for volunteers working on the site.
